

INTERNATIONAL HUMAN RIGHTS ART
MOVEMENT

AFRICAN HUMAN RIGHTS SPOKEN
WORDS CONTEST

Second Prize

Voice Against Child Trafficking By Chanjoh Rexson Ngong, Cameroon

Chanjoh Rexson Ngong is a student engineer whose passion extends beyond the realm of engineering to making a positive impact in various aspects of life. He actively engages in advocacy, addressing issues related to human rights, good governance, peace, and more. His approach involves leveraging various forms of art and campaigns to amplify his messages and effect meaningful change.

VOICE AGAINST CHILD TRAFFICKING

In Africa's Embrace, where hope should reside
A dark truth lingers, we can no longer hide
Child trafficking grip, a haunting plight
We gather our voices ready to fight

They're snatched from their homes, their dreams torn away
Sold into darkness, their futures held at bay
Invisible chains, building their fragile souls
We stand united , determined to make theme whole

Children, previous gems, their worth untold
Exploited and used, their spirits unfold
But we won't be silent, we won't turn away
Together we'll rise their freedom we'll convey

We'll rescue the lost, bring them back to the light
Shatter the darkness, restore their right, till child trafficking die
Through Unity and action, we'll make a stand
Erasing child trafficking from our African land